

Share the Benefits Join the Allergen Bureau

The Allergen Bureau can help your company:

- Reduce costs associated with attending Allergen Bureau conferences and Allergen Bureau VITAL training
- Understand the risks associated with handling allergens
- Access up to date news and information about food allergens from around the world
- Utilise the latest management tools in allergen control including the VITAL and the PIF

Managing the risks associated with the presence of allergens in ingredients and products is one of the major challenges currently facing food manufacturers – at all stages of the supply chain.

If you are involved in the food industry, you would benefit from membership of the Allergen Bureau.

The Allergen Bureau – established by the Australian and New Zealand food industry in 2005 – is funded by industry and is managed by industry representatives who understand the challenges faced in the management of allergens in a food production environment. We are a ‘one stop shop’ for information resources, practical tools and industry contacts for the management of food allergens.

By becoming a member of the Allergen Bureau you are demonstrating your company’s commitment to this area of food safety and actively supporting this important industry initiative.

So what are you waiting for?

Allergen Bureau Members – including small, medium and large food companies – are recognised as leaders in this field, and share the benefits of an industry approach to improving the management of food allergens.
